LUSITANIA SAILS WITH 1,300 IN SPITE OF WAR

LINER LUSITANIA, WHICH SAILED IN SPITE OF GERMAN WARNING, AND SOME OF THE WELL KNOWN PASSENGERS

Left to right, Charles Klein, playwright; Elbert Hubbard, noted writer; Lady Mack Worth and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. These are some of the passengers who sailed on the Lusitania yesterday.

SAYS SUFFRAGE AND SOCIALISM ARE ALLIED

Mrs. A. J. George of Brookline
Makes Charge at Faneuil
Hall Meeting.

Mrs. A. J. George of Brookline, one of the Anti-Suffrage leaders and member of the State "Anti" Committee, asserted in Faneuil Hall last night, at an Anti-Suffrage-Anti-Socialist meeting, that the alliance between suffrage and socialism is real, not imaginary; that the president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association is an avowed Socialist; that there was a large batch of Socialists in the suffrage parade here and that, wherever you find a Socialist or Socialist leader, there you find a woman suffragist.

Mrs. George, one of four speakers, drew almost wholly upon the argument that Socialism and woman suffrage are partners. The other speakers, Corporation Counsel John A. Sullivan, who presided; J. Mitchell Galvin, the Dorchester Republican, and John A. Matthews of New Jersey, spoke more directly against suffrage without reference to Socialism.

Four or five times vigorous statements against woman suffrage brought applause from some in the audience. The "Anti" argued that the alliance must have come from suffragists who had come to hear what the "Anti" had to offer.

The meeting had been extensively advertised as against Socialism. It was held at a significant time, yesterday being Socialist Day. While Mrs. George was attacking the alleged Socialist-suffrage alliance from Faneuil Hall platform the Socialists (or Socialists, not as suffragists) were holding parade and meeting and similar demonstration elsewhere.

Winchester Man Is Near Death as Train Hits Auto

William T. Berry, forty-eight, of No. 17 Wildwood street, Winchester, son of former Vice-President William F. Berry of the Boston & Maine, was nearly killed late yesterday when the brakes of his automobile refused to work, causing him to crash through the gates of the Main street crossing of the railroad tracks at Reading where a north bound express train ran into the machine throwing Berry and a companion, J. Tyler of No. 134 West Canton street, South End, a distance of fifty feet.

Berry's right leg was severed at the knee. His left leg was broken and he also received an ugly gash at the base of the skull. Tyler received with a severe shaking on Berry was placed aboard a Boston local express. He was rushed to the Massachusetts General Hospital. The doctors say he will not survive.

According to witnesses the engine of the automobile stalled when the car reached the tracks. The engineer of the train saw the trouble and endeavored to stop his train. It was learned last night that Berry and Tyler were bound for their homes after a business trip in New Hampshire when the accident occurred.

SUIT TO RECOVER NEW HAVEN FUNDS

Boston Attorney Acting in Plans Under Consideration by Small Stockholders.

Attorney Arthur Berenson, of the Pemberton building yesterday announced that plans were under way to bring suit against the estates of J. P. Morgan, I. DeVer Warner, Edward Miller and others in New York state "to recover funds unlawfully squandered by the former directors of the New Haven road."

The proposed suit would be a parallel to that filed by Attorney Sherman L. Whipple in this state. The courts here have ruled that they have jurisdiction only over property in this state, and the biggest New Haven dividends live elsewhere.

The plan for a suit to be filed in New York has been presented to Samuel Untermyer. He has been asked to handle the case, but would not agree to do so unless a large body of the small stockholders should ask that such a step be taken.

A number of the stockholders, when Mr. Berenson represents, yesterday sent out a circular letter to every stockholder of the road, asking whether they believed such a suit should be brought.

The signers of the letter are Arthur Perkins, J. Arthur Cane, Edward Perkins, Charles D. Willcutt, William J. Barry, J. C. Morse, Edward J. Butler, J. Murray Baker, Joseph Enloe, Mary M. Clark, Thomas W. Watson and an estate of Ezra Palmer of which Ann E. French is a co-trustee. Mr. Willcutt is secretary of the group, and the attorneys are Arthur and Bernard Berenson and Francis P. Garland.

LIONEL HARVARD WILL GO TO WAR

Proposes to Enter British Army After Graduation at Cambridge in June.

Lionel de Jersey Harvard will hasten back to England as soon as he is graduated from Harvard College this June, to enter the British army and fight for the cause of England and the allies, which he esteems "just and good."

At present Mr. Harvard is not only studying hard for a degree, with distinction, but he is also engaged on the 1915 class poem which he is to deliver on class day.

Recently he won the Bacchante hymn competition, adding another academic achievement to the several honors he has acquired in his Harvard College activities.

Lionel de Jersey Harvard is a direct descendant of a cousin of John Harvard, founder of the college. He is the only member of the Harvard family to be a pupil there.

Inquiry of Mr. Harvard yesterday as to his plans after being graduated developed the fact that he plans to fight for England by mid-summer. He said:

"I am going to enter the British Army. I shall leave for home as soon as my four years at Harvard are completed in June, and present myself for admission to the army. I do not know whether I shall be assigned for home defense or for the more exciting action on the field."

"I think the cause of the Allies is just and good one, but I deplore that this great war is raging over Europe."

"I shall leave Cambridge after Commencement week exercises in June and shall immediately offer my services in the fight my country is making in the interests of justice and universal peace."

"I am glad to see the Bacchante hymn. Mr. Harvard expressed modesty in his pleasure at his offering being selected among the many put in for competition."

A year ago Mr. Harvard won first prize in the annual Boston speech contest in Sanders Theatre. He has also secured in college dramatics, especially in the roles of British heroism.

800,000 MEN ON ITALIAN BORDER

Austrian Subjects Ordered to Quit Italian Territory by May 6; Spies Arrested.

By International News Service. ROME, May 1.—The Messagero correspondent, writing from the border, reports that there are 200,000 Austrian troops massed in Trentino, 200,000 Austrians stationed along the Isarco River and 60,000 more Austrians at Pola.

A hurried inspection revealed the existence of a number of fortifications recently constructed and other extensive preparations to repulse an invading army. Near Gorizia three aviation squadrons have been ordered to house derelicts of the Parnassus type which are destined to operate on the Italian border.

The Vienna government has instructed its ambassador at Rome to insist upon evacuation of Italy of Austrians within twenty days.

"Italy has no intention of allowing any foreign troops to pass through its territory," said a spokesman of the Italian government.

ALLIES' LAND FORCE BEATEN BY THE TURKS

British Claim Troops Are Established at Six Points on Gallipoli Peninsula.

By International News Service. LONDON, May 1.—Wireless via London.—The following Turkish official statement was received here tonight late from Constantinople: "At Kaba Tepe the enemy attempted to extricate himself from a state of flank. He was repulsed and forced to retreat at a point 500 yards from the coast and far under the protection of his own ships completely frustrated."

On the European side of the Gallipoli Peninsula, the Turkish forces are reported to be concentrated around Malles, the town directly opposite Suvla, where the British Admiralty yesterday reported on the effects of the fire from the British battleships, Triumph.

FOUR BARRIERS. British troops have pushed inland from the western shore of Gallipoli until they have formed a barrier which, with the help of fire from the ships, prevents the Turks from passing from one shore to the other.

The main force of the Turks are reported to be concentrated around Malles, the town directly opposite Suvla, where the British Admiralty yesterday reported on the effects of the fire from the British battleships, Triumph.

CRUISE DAMAGED. Although it is admitted generally that the French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc was severely crippled by the Turkish guns and that a destroyer was sunk, the Admiralty is still without reports confirming the Turkish claim, reported by Berlin, that the majestic Triumph and Vanguard were hit and forced to quit the fight.

The British are progressing rapidly toward establishing an open communications line with the Allies on the European side of the Gallipoli Peninsula.

OF WAR IN GERMAN EMBASSY ADVERTISEMENTS TELLS AMERICANS BEWARE

Alfred Vanderbilt, Elbert Hubbard, Charles Frohman and Other Notable Passengers
Refuse to Be Frightened—Embassy's Act Viewed in Washington with Resentment

NEW YORK, May 1.—Despite the advertised warning of the German Embassy that passengers travelling on ships of the Allies would run the risk of being blown up in mid-ocean, the Lusitania, of the Cunard line, sailed today with more passengers and cargo than she has carried since the beginning of the war.

Many prominent Americans were among the first cabin passengers. Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hubbard, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, D. A. Thomas, Lady Mack Worth, Charles Frohman and Charles Klein were among them.

The voyagers numbered 300 first, 650 second, and 200 steerage.

Whether the publication of the warning was in any way a threat against the Lusitania could only be conjectured. Officials at the German Embassy said so far as they knew the notice was only a reminder, and did not indicate any new naval operations by Germany.

The warning, published as an advertisement in the New York newspapers, read as follows:

NOTICE.
Travelers intending to embark on the Atlantic voyage are reminded that a state of war exists between Germany and her allies and Great Britain and her allies; that the zone of war includes the waters adjacent to the British Isles; that, in accordance with formal notice given by the Imperial German government, vessels flying the flag of Great Britain, or of any of her allies, are liable to destruction in those waters, and that travelers sailing in the war zone on ships of Great Britain or her allies do so at their own risk.—Imperial German Embassy, Washington, D. C., April 22, 1915.

The liner was delayed two hours and a half in sailing by the receipt of a cable from London stating that the Germans had been repulsed by the British admiralty and that her passengers had been transferred to the Lusitania. The Lusitania was delayed but had been ordered to sail.

There were many relatives of those sailing who pleaded with the departing ship to remain about three weeks.

Elbert Hubbard accompanied by his wife went over in the hope of getting into Germany and taking an interview with the German Emperor.

"I used to be on friendly terms with the Kaiser," said Mr. Hubbard, "but I don't know how I stand now with him. You know, I have written something he may not have liked."

Mr. Hubbard knew that the German warning but said he would make an effort to get into the lifeboats, if the German threat was put into effect, unless there was some spare time, unless there was some spare time.

ing notice that American lives and property must not be endangered.

SALE FROM NEW YORK.
The largest number of transatlantic travelers to leave New York in a single day this spring had board passages on five big liners leaving port today.

The Lusitania, bound for Liverpool, had nearly 900 cabin passengers and a large number in the steerage.

Beside the Lusitania, for Liverpool, were the British liner Cunard for the Mediterranean, by way of Boston, the Danish liner Merganser for the Baltic, the Dutch steamer, the German liner Rotterdam, and the American liner New York for Liverpool.

Charles P. Sumner, general agent of the Cunard Line, said that the steamer passage was attended by no special excitement, as the liner has speed of 25 knots and was provided with unusual water-tight bulkheads.

GERMAN EMBASSY'S WARNING IS TAKEN AS VERY 'BAD TASTE'
WASHINGTON, May 1.—The German Embassy's action in publishing advertisements making passage on British vessels is regarded here as a "very bad taste" when viewed in connection with other recent activities by the German Embassy.

The German Embassy said its warning to the public against orders from Berlin, Secretary of State, and the British and French Embassies called the State Department's attention to the warning, saying various aspects of the situation before Secretary of State Bryan.

This latter move is considered as "very bad taste" that the State Department, it is pointed out, has advised to American citizens against doing what they refrain from doing what may be to their own interest.

While the German Embassy has maintained they have a perfect right to do what they please, it is also pointed out that the Embassy may properly use the means of carrying out its policy, but the effect of which might well be to result in harm to legitimate American commercial interests.

While the matter has not yet been officially taken up by the State Department, it is known that these considerations are being weighed in the minds of officials and that it is not to be disregarded that the incident will be disregarded.

TWO VIEWS EXPRESSED.
The matter is looked on here as a "very bad taste" either as a thoughtless offense, against diplomatic proprieties or as another effort to attempt to irritate the government of the United States.

Officials here thought the displacement activities of the embassy would be in line with the advertisement administered by the Embassy in the shipment of arms from the United States to the allies.

This was considered to be the culmination of attempts, charges and communications of the part of the German Embassy which the State Department found offensive to the dignity of government and lacking in the proper respect due to accredited diplomatic officers of other governments.

REPORT TO "TICK QUARREL."
The statement was made at the time the German Embassy was notified that if further irritations emanated from German officials, the State Department would be obliged to take action to terminate the same.

Viviani Tells Irishmen of New Brotherhood

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, May 1.—The Irish brotherhood, which may well make itself, are being invited to the French and the people of the United Kingdom, declared Premier Viviani today, in addressing an Irish delegation.

A letter south of the Niagara River yesterday in the fight against the German forces and the allies of the French government that the sympathies of Ireland are with the allies.

His leaders are John E. Hodgson and T. P. O'Connor. In his address the Premier said in part:

"Internal brotherhood is blossoming between the French and English and Irish along the banks of the Nile, where German imperialism is now expiring its last breath, and along the shores of the Danubian, where tomorrow we shall break down the barriers."

RUSSIA REPORTS KAISER CHECKED

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PETROHARD, May 1.—Russian troops sent to repel the German invasion of Kovno have checked the German attacks along the Russian River and have taken the offensive, the War Office announced today.

A letter south of the Niagara River yesterday in the fight against the German forces and the allies of the French government that the sympathies of Ireland are with the allies.

'SHELLING OF DUNKIRK FUTILE'

By International News Service.
PARIS, May 1.—The following note was issued by the War Office tonight:

"The bombardment of Dunkirk by heavy artillery is new proof that the Germans, being unable to pierce our lines and thereby obtain some appreciable result, are applying themselves to making an impression on British opinion by manifestations devoid of military effect."

From the viewpoint of the development of operations this bombardment is of no importance whatever. The effects are purely local. The destruction of a few houses and the death of a few inhabitants of Dunkirk—new victims of German barbarism—can only result in a further weakening of the German position.

The situation of the British forces facing each other in Belgium is not modified in any way. The German shells, thrown from a distance now placed as twenty-two miles from the city, do not strike the city.

The German guns, it is explained, are located near Westende, Belgium, approximately twelve miles from Dunkirk.

The bombardment of Dunkirk from such range, indicating that the Germans have developed a new weapon of tremendous power, has caused the most anxious anxiety here as to the situation.

Recollections of how Liege, Namur, Antwerp and Maastricht crumbled before the bombardment of the 12-centimeter guns, gave the impression that this new German weapon was a "Zetonite" shell as the French called it.

BOARD OF APPEALS MEETINGS SECRET

The board of appeals of the building department of the city decided yesterday, as subsequently announced by Timothy W. Walsh, member and secretary of the board, that neither press nor public would be admitted to board sessions in the future.

The decision for closed hearings, the secretary added, was unanimous. The board of appeals is a body of five members, President Carl G. Gustin, Secretary Walsh, and members John F. Stearns and Walter S. Gier. The members receive $10 a day while in session. The secretary receives $5 an hour in addition for all work done for the board outside sessions.

The board, which succeeds the one removed by Mayor Curley because he held that its rulings were arbitrary and contrary to public policy, has about fifty cases before it for decision, with property interests of over a million dollars concerned.

FEAR COE'S MIND HAS BEEN BLANK

Reports are anxiously awaited from far-off Fairbanks, Alaska, concerning the mental condition of Harry Clarke Coe, Jr., the young Standard Oil salesman of Boston, who disappeared January 26, last, from his home, business, and friends, who has been sought all over the country and whose discovery in Alaska became known in Boston for the first time yesterday.

The chief of a Boston detective agency, which gave out first information of Coe being located, said: "It appears that Coe doesn't remember anything about leaving home or how he made his way to Alaska."

The young man's mother, Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe of New York city, said: "We are afraid that Harry's mind is permanently damaged, but our fears of that are not offset by our joy at finding him."

At No. 153 Harvard street, in the Coolidge Corner section of Brookline are young Mrs. Coe, her baby girl, Jane, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe.

The household is overjoyed at the news that Coe has been found, but the young wife and mother has been unwilling so far to make any statement.

Neither the wife nor her mother knew of the finding of Coe at the time the information was given out by the Boston detective chief, Mrs. Alvin Lester Cutler, said.

She estimated the damage at $100,000, when told the news by a reporter, that she had not heard it before, but that the detective had done most of his talking with Mr. Alvin, who was then in Maine.

Russians Repulsed Around Uzkok Pass

By International News Service.
VIENNA, May 1.—Efforts of the Russians to capture the crest east of Uzkok Pass in the Carpathian mountains have resulted in complete failure, the Austrian War Office announced today.

In the Ogor valley, south of Tsuchika, the Russians with reinforcements of heavy artillery, launched a number of attacks against the Austro-German forces, but all were repulsed.

The chief of a Boston detective agency, which gave out first information of Coe being located, said: "It appears that Coe doesn't remember anything about leaving home or how he made his way to Alaska."

The young man's mother, Mrs. Henry Clarke Coe of New York city, said: "We are afraid that Harry's mind is permanently damaged, but our fears of that are not offset by our joy at finding him."

Young Astor Goes Back to New York

"Hiawatha" is derived from Longfellow's cry of "Hi, Water!" according to solemn explanation given by "K. L.," an irreverent freshman at Wellesley College, in a humorous article in the College News on "Natural Enigmas of Wellesley."

IV. GRASS.
Grass is one of the most common things in Wellesley with the possible exception of the quail. "I am a grass keeper," says one of the literary experts and General Harmonization with the color scheme of the club at large. "I cut and carry. There are some to keep off, and the important thing is to have a form, since it furnishes a strength for developing a character. It can actually be used to develop a form from a simple mental idea to what should be used also for dancing, what is the same thing and spirituality.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE TALKS IT OVER WITH DOCTOR NICHOLS

The Author and the Harvard Professor Discuss the Various Forms of Exercise for the Promotion of the Average Man's Health

JULIAN HAWTHORNE, the distinguished author, and essayist, is also an authority on various forms of athletics. He was one of the notable athletes of his class in Harvard and has always been an advocate of vigorous outdoor exercise as a conservator of health. When in New York Mr. Hawthorne's habit was to walk to and from his residence in Yonkers, 17 miles distant, rather than go by train or trolley—a daily constitutional of 34 miles for a man of sixty

DR. F. H. NICHOLS, of No. 291 Marlboro street, is a Harvard professor and physical director in charge of the students, has been a member of the faculty of the university. He is in charge of the Student Physical Training Association. No other person is, the man most closely in touch with the athletic life of the university. He is the author of books upon athletics, and is himself a tennis player.

EXPERT ON HEALTH ON ATHLETICS OF THE DAY

Competitive Sports and Games Good for the Young Men, Says Harvard Expert, but Advises Against All Violent Exercises for Men After 35.

Last Thursday morning Mr. Julian Hawthorne and Dr. E. H. Nichols, associate professor at Harvard and physical director in charge of the students, met by appointment at Dr. Nichols' office in Marlboro street. The purpose of this meeting was to interview Dr. Nichols upon the very interesting subject of proper muscular exercise for maintaining and promoting health.

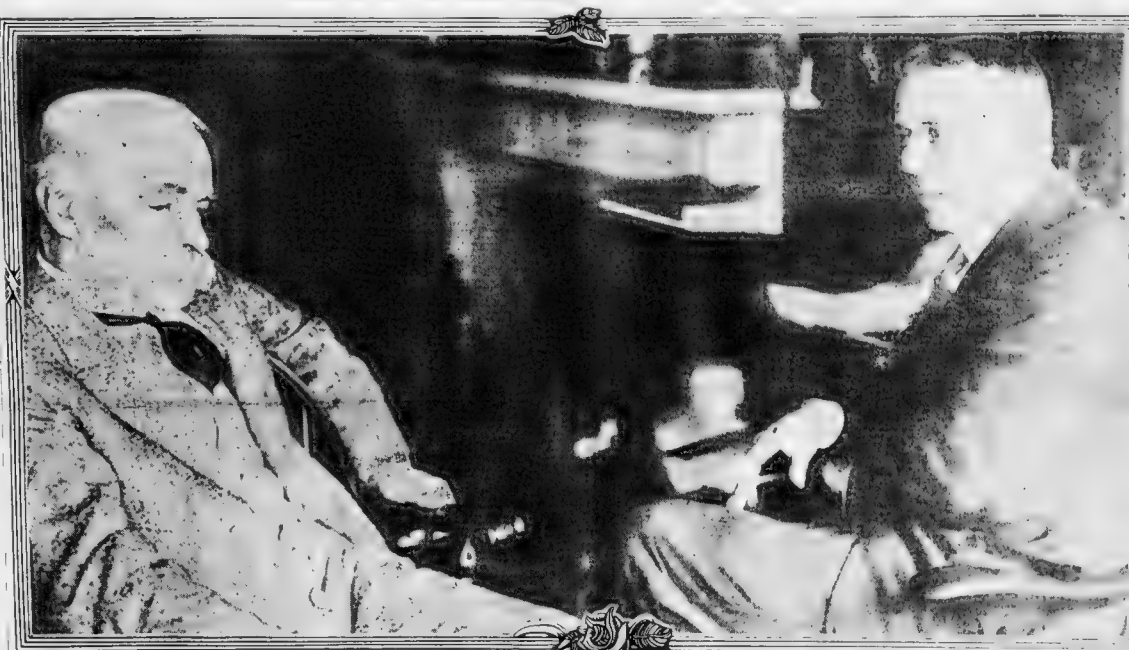

MR. HAWTHORNE—I have come to get your views as to the relative value of the various kinds of exercise for the average man of business. I have some experience of my own. I have been in athletics since 1883. I grew up with various kinds of ideas that were prevailing at different periods. I went through them all and came out with the idea that light and regular exercise was the best thing for me. But you have had opportunities to study the things in a much more scientific manner than I have, and you could probably give hints of great general value. I would like to ask you what exercise you consider is good for the average man.

DR. NICHOLS—You mean the man who has the leisure and the ability to spend two or three hours a day in taking care of himself in that way, but who has no idea of making records or of engaging in competitions except with men of his own class?

MR. HAWTHORNE—Yes; if you can give me your opinion about the relative value of different kinds of sports or exercises then we can give some good advice to such people, which I think would be very valuable and which, except sporadically, does not exist in any particular form.

DR. Nichols' Views on Many Sports.

DR. NICHOLS—(Looking at a list of queries about different sports handed to him by Mr. Hawthorne.) Take wrestling—that's a young man's game. It is a very violent exercise, and only the men of the highest training should take part in it.

Jiu jitsu—All I know about jiu jitsu are two or three strangle holds which I have seen demonstrated.

Football—is a young man's game. It strikes me as being merely a boys' competitive game. Football and racing are only desirable in very young, highly-trained men.

Polo—I don't know anything about it. I don't like horses. Then you come to running, rowing and baseball. Those again are all young men's sports, unless you take up rowing as a pastime, simply going out and paddling around in a boat or canoe.

Hockey—is a young man's competitive game. Hockey and skating are the best of all conditioning games for men under thirty-five. Most men after thirty-five or forty should not indulge in violent exercise. My daughter is very fond of skating, and I consider it good for her.

Tennis—is a pretty violent game. I am very fond of it and used to play a fair duffer's game. I have a boy nineteen years old who plays well, and after I have played two sets with him I find that is all I want.

Basketball—In my opinion basketball is no game any way. It is almost always played indoors on a hardwood floor and is a most violent game, but the chances of injury are not so great as in football.

Boxing—I have never done. I know comparatively little about it. Boxing and wrestling are good conditioning things. I suppose that a man who would follow up boxing systematically could keep in pretty good condition.

Calisthenics—is a compressed way of getting good exercise.

Swimming—A beautiful exercise where it can be carried out.

Horseback riding—I know nothing about.

Handball—is a bully exercise.

Golf is Best for Man Over 35.

Walking—Well, I'd just as soon take a pill. I despise it. Of course, to go out and walk in the country is all very pretty, but to walk two or three miles a day it seems to me is the least interesting of all exercises.

Golf—is a bully exercise if a man is able to indulge in it. It takes a man out of doors, and it gives most men under forty-five all the exercise they need. It is a good, healthy exercise,

MR. HAWTHORNE—Well, what exercise would you advise the average man to follow?

DR. NICHOLS—I should say for a man out of college up to thirty-five tennis is the best of all games. For a man over forty-five golf is a good game. For a man of sixty golf comes nearer to filling the bill than anything else, although to me it is the worst game in the world, as it is like playing billiards on a perfectly rotten table. It doesn't interest me.

Any exercise, however, is unwise that increases the blood tension.

The amount of exercise to be taken depends on the man. Now I know a man who was seventy-four on his last birthday and who plays a good game of tennis. I said when I was younger I could play a good duffer's game of tennis, but he can make me hustle to beat him.

The greatest value of competitive athletics is in the mental training it gives. But it takes a great many men who have taken part in competitive athletics in college several years before they can give themselves to a limited amount of exercise.

MR. HAWTHORNE—I think a great deal of it is done to young men in this country.

DR. NICHOLS—I think the amount of injury done in that way is greatly overrated.

I think that unless a young man feels that he can afford to take two or three hours' exercise daily after getting out of college he is making a mistake to take up violent sports.

I took part in competitive sports while at college, and it took me a great while to get adjusted to a little exercise when I left. Now I get none.

Again referring to the list of questions.

Clothing—Always wool. Out of running drawers are no good to anybody. Wearing Summer underclothing all Winter is another bad practice.

Shower bath—is a good thing for a man just after exercise. It is a cold bath is not good. I now if I play a round and then took a cold shower I would feel very tired.

Fatigue Surest Test of When to Stop.

Importance of exercise. Any exercise is good if taken regularly. I think a man gets more interest out of competitive exercises. It is only the very small man who is not indulged in his exercises. This old man I mentioned who plays tennis has always been very methodical. But competitive exercises are not much good after thirty.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Unless you like exercises.

DR. NICHOLS—I know very little of my life who have left no systematic exercises.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Yes, really, is the thing that strikes me.

Mr. Hawthorne suggested that a man could invent a game that would prove interesting and keep a man in good physical shape he could make a mistake. Dr. Nichols was of the same opinion.

DR. NICHOLS—Golf strikes me as being the best game for a man over thirty.

MR. HAWTHORNE—It's a "millionaire's" game, at least. It seems to have been John D. Rockefeller's idea of good, and also a good deal of golf is done this way.

DR. NICHOLS—A lot of men get so crazy over a game that they don't exercise judgment and as a result tire them-

TENNIS FOR MEN UNDER 34--GOLF AFTER 45

Can't Bat a Net Good for Any One, H. Nichols said it is a Great Mistake to Wear Summer Wear in the Winter

Dr. Nichols said that the average man of business should not indulge in violent exercises after thirty-five.

MR. HAWTHORNE—I think that the average man of business should not indulge in violent exercises after thirty-five.

DR. NICHOLS—Well, suppose a man of sixty takes a little exercise every day. He is not doing it for his health, but for his pleasure.

MR. HAWTHORNE—In that case, I think it is all right.

DR. NICHOLS—Yes, I have seen many men who have been very active in their youth and who have been very active in their old age.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Don't you think that a man of sixty should take a little exercise every day?

DR. NICHOLS—That takes me back to the question of the average man of business.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Do you think that a man of sixty should take a little exercise every day?

DR. NICHOLS—Yes, I have seen many men who have been very active in their youth and who have been very active in their old age.

DR. NICHOLS—Yes, I have seen many men who have been very active in their youth and who have been very active in their old age.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Did you notice much attendance?

DR. NICHOLS—Yes, the field was covered with young men.

MR. HAWTHORNE—An older man.

DR. NICHOLS—We are men of law in there were men forty years old. I am game seemed to appeal to the older men, though there were young men also playing.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Golf would be a better game for me than tennis.

DR. NICHOLS—You are in the winter time. I have played and made into a good one.

MR. HAWTHORNE—Twelve years ago I was writing some of the New York Times and I was told using a golf club to play golf.

DR. NICHOLS—Well if you drive around Boston today you will see a golf course on every side.

Here the conversation took a turn to tennis, and Mr. Hawthorne told that in England an old fellow had to play some times served as a court all the time.

MR. HAWTHORNE—After that I have been playing tennis for some time.

DR. NICHOLS—After I got married I played tennis in some ways better than baseball. I remember when I was in Baltimore with the Harvard team I tried my hand at the game and won in a while.

Largest House of Its Kind in the World

Extraordinary values will be offered this week in late model touring cars and runabouts, slightly used, as our buyers made exceptional purchases within the past two weeks. These cars are offered to you at a very small profit, and as low on time as for cash. Our original method of selling for "Half Down and Balance Monthly," giving the purchaser a chance to see if our cars are as represented, is the biggest factor in our success. As practically all of our cars are purchased from private individuals, who we know have given them the best care, you are fully protected in buying from us. Every car is exactly as represented, or money refunded. Our reference is your next door neighbor, who purchased his car of us. We have the largest and most complete stock to select from and the largest and most competent sales force to give you every courtesy and attention, and we cordially invite you to call and inspect our stock whether you intend buying now or later. No trouble to show our goods. Remember the correct address. We have no connection with any other concern anywhere.

Tomorrow Begins Celestia The Goddess

Briefly, the story is this:

Celestia, reared in what she has been taught is Heaven and made to believe herself divine, comes into the busy world to redeem all sinners. In her innocent, unsophisticated manner and bedecked in flimsy draperies, she comes face to face with vice and hypocrisy and conquers it.

At first the world jeers and hoots her. Then it fears her and stands aghast at the force of her unexpected power. Finally, they fall before her, worshipping.

At the same time, the Triumvirate of Millionaires are attempting to capitalize her vogue to their own profit.

Historians, pause! Literateurs, mark down the day!

Men and women of the people, prepare for a mental feast. Tomorrow begins the most inspired story and motion picture ever produced,—one that will take its place among the beloved tales of all time.

It is said that a classic is never recognized by the people to whom it is first presented; and only posterity gives it, its due.

But if the reception that has been accorded so far to "The Goddess" by those who have been privileged to know it—is any criterion to its further acceptance, it will surpass in popularity any book ever written and any drama ever played on stage or screen.

It is a novel of Gouverneur Morris and has been made into a moving picture under the auspices of the

Boston American by the eminent organization of the VITAGRAPH COMPANY

The name part in the picture is taken by Anita Stewart, the wood nymph, the sprite of airy-fairy manner, the nimblest, most delightful creature to be viewed anywhere "in captivity."

Earle Williams, fascinatingly adored by a world of femininity is Tommy Steele, the earthly lover of Celestia. Frank Currier plays Barclay, the plutocratic, beureaucratic millionaire, officed in Wall Street.

The rest of the cast includes actors and actresses well known to American theatre-goers.

Ralph Ince has personal charge of the stage direction and the whole Vitagraph organization has gone to every end to help make this equal to its possibilities—which are infinite.

The story of Gouverneur Morris begins tomorrow night in the

Many Events in Honor of Miss Irene Wood, an Interesting Debutante

An interesting "come-outer" among the buds of the season is Miss Irene Wood, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Wood of No. 21 Fairfield street. Miss Wood made her debut December 14. Since then she has taken part in a long list of social activities, in which the younger set has predominated.

Miss Wood's mother is the daughter of Frederick Ayer, the millionaire Lowell mill owner, while Mr. Wood is one of the most influential mill owners in the country. Miss Wood was educated at the fashionable Miss May's school and she spent about eight months in a finishing school abroad.

The Woods have a beautiful country estate at Andover, and they also spend part of their Summers at Pride's, where Miss Wood takes part in the outdoor sports of the North Shore. She has a younger sister, Miss Rosalind, and two brothers, William M., Jr., and Cornelius Ayer Wood.

VINCENT CLUB GIRLS TO REPEAT SHOW FOR SERBIANS

Boston's Talented Society Maids Win Overwhelming Success Aboard the "S. S. Romantic"

Hitherto unpublished photograph of complete Vincent Club Show Cast. Nearly all of the young women in this group have appeared in the show during the last three seasons and not a few have attained marked histrionic merit.

Miss Dorothy Jordan, Solo Dancer, Wins Unstinted Praise for Her Efforts.

In a woman's show, for women only, the Vincent club members just "let themselves go" in a riot of fascinating color, dancing, music and fun at the Court Theatre on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday afternoon of the week.

And it has been decided to repeat the show next Tuesday afternoon for the benefit of the Serbian War sufferers. This decision was reached when it was seen that the probability of filling the house was exceedingly good, in view of the big audience that had made the first three performances an unqualified success.

Miss Dorothy Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cunningham of No. 125 Ivy road, Longwood, and one of the prettiest of the Boston younger set, will take the role of "Lena Cantalieri" of the "Mistral" opera company.

Miss Cunningham's role was played during the three performances of last week by Miss Mary Fay, who has been obliged to withdraw from the part.

In the third act Lena Cantalieri appears as a soloist in the beautiful performance preceding the solo dance of Miss Dorothy Jordan and the finale.

The Vincent Club show is the stellar social event of the year, for in the person of the club members organization is a most representative cross-section of young people of great Boston's most varied large and small fashionable circles.

As evidence of the perfect taste of dramatic, vocal and dancing accomplishments and initiative of both society girls and young matrons in these arts as well as a demonstration of costume art by leading London couturiers and monstrosities, all the sources of the Vincent club's cause, the Vincent Memorial Hospital, as the 14-page program of testimonials and acknowledgments showed.

WRITTEN BY MEMBERS.

The vehicle this year was "S. S. Romantic" written by and with musical adaptations by four of the club members.

The authors of the operetta were the Misses Barbara Burr and Alice Thorndike. The music was adapted by the Misses Katharine Dorr and Miriam Sears. They had the assistance of James Gillett, as dramatic coach and arranger of the scenes, while Mrs. Lilla Allen Wyman taught the dances and Miss Lilla Allen Wyman, the noted song director, in charge of the scenery and lighting.

With such admirable support and the natural talent, grace and adaptation of some 140 society girls, "S. S. Romantic" was given with ease and form equal to the work of professionals.

One saw society belles, young matrons and debutantes transformed into very fascinating males.

They disappeared with masculine assertiveness and boyish swagger at sailors, jugglers, Arabian men, mad musicians, mad "foolsters," "bad grays," gamblers, and show rills and dancing masters.

With an equal degree of feminine versatility, other such characters assumed the various parts of the show.

The play itself is a story of New York, in which a young man, Louis Pierre, is forced to leave his home and family to go to sea.

He meets a girl named Lena Cantalieri, who is the daughter of a wealthy American house.

He falls in love with her, but she is already engaged to another man.

He goes to sea, and she follows him.

He returns, and she is waiting for him.

He and she are reunited, and they live happily ever after.

in the glow of the excitement of the show, the girls of the Vincent club, who had been so successful in their first three performances, were again to be seen in a new and more elaborate production.

The audience became acquainted with the opening act with Miss Dorothy Jordan, who was the solo dancer, and the rest of the cast.

Bon Ton CORSETS

Authentic New Modes

Months ago our Parisian designers went to Paris and other centers to get ideas, to study fashions and their effect on corsets.

They caught the inspiration of the new mode and designed models distinctly different from last season, with beautiful curves, higher bust and marvelous fitting qualities.

These exquisite creations are now on display. Just a hint that you should not delay in seeing them. Price $3 to $25.

Model 947 is a smart new conception ideal for any average figure. Price $8.

HERE'S AN ORIGINAL VIEW OF THE GREAT TRIAL AT SYRACUSE

Barrington Wells of Boston Says, Confidentially, of Course, That T. Roosevelt Is Judge, Jury, Plaintiff, Defendant and Counsel for Both Sides!

And Have YOU Said That the Barnes-Roosevelt Inquiry "Puts Syracuse on the Map?" Shucks! Here Originated the George Whelan United-Cigar-Stores Idea; From Syracuse Ventured Forth the Shubert Boys, Into the Great World of the Theatre; and Here Today Works Harold MacGrath, on Yet Another Best Seller! Jim McGuire's Town, Too!

By BARRINGTON WELLS.

After looking them over at the Onondaga Court House for a day or two, in the beautiful central New York city of Syracuse (population 137,219), I am led to believe that Mr. Barnes of Albany will NOT collect the $50,000 for which he is suing Colonel Theodore Roosevelt for libel.

I spent a couple of days in the court house at Syracuse the past week, and somehow I brought away the impression that the cast of characters is like this:

Plaintiff..... Theodore Roosevelt
Defendant..... Colonel Roosevelt
Attorney for plaintiff..... T. Roosevelt, Esq., Oyster Bay
Attorney for plaintiff..... Former Vice President Roosevelt
Jury..... A. B. C., etc., Roosevelt
Reporters..... X. Y. Z., etc., Roosevelt
Properties, by Roosevelt, Oyster Bay; scenery, from the Bull Moose studios; costumes, Roosevelt; electrical effects, T. words, Who But! music, ditto.

And so I am inclined to the belief prevalent, by the way, in Syracuse that Mr. Barnes of Albany MAY get a verdict of six cents or so against the well-known Colonel, or that the jury MAY disagree, but that the former President of the United States is to be mulcted in the sum of $50,000, or any respectable part thereof, is quite out of the question.

Once upon a time, at Harvard, they asked Kermit Roosevelt, lately of Spain, for an estimate of his then universally adored papa, and Kermit, if memory serves aright, summed "Dad" up as follows:

"Well, I'll tell you. If he goes to a wedding, he wants to be a bride; if he goes to a funeral he wants to be laid out in the coffin. Get me?"

THAT'S the kind of a trial they have been having in Barnes v. Roosevelt.

The innocent bystander from New England will be forgiven if he assumes that Judge Theodore Roosevelt is here engaged in hearing the suit of one Roosevelt of New York against a certain T. Roosevelt of Oyster Bay.

MY orders, however, were to have a look at the trial and report about Syracuse.

INDEED, WELL, WELL—

I found Syracuse properly and intelligently prepared for the occasion. It is the trial "putting Syracuse on the map."

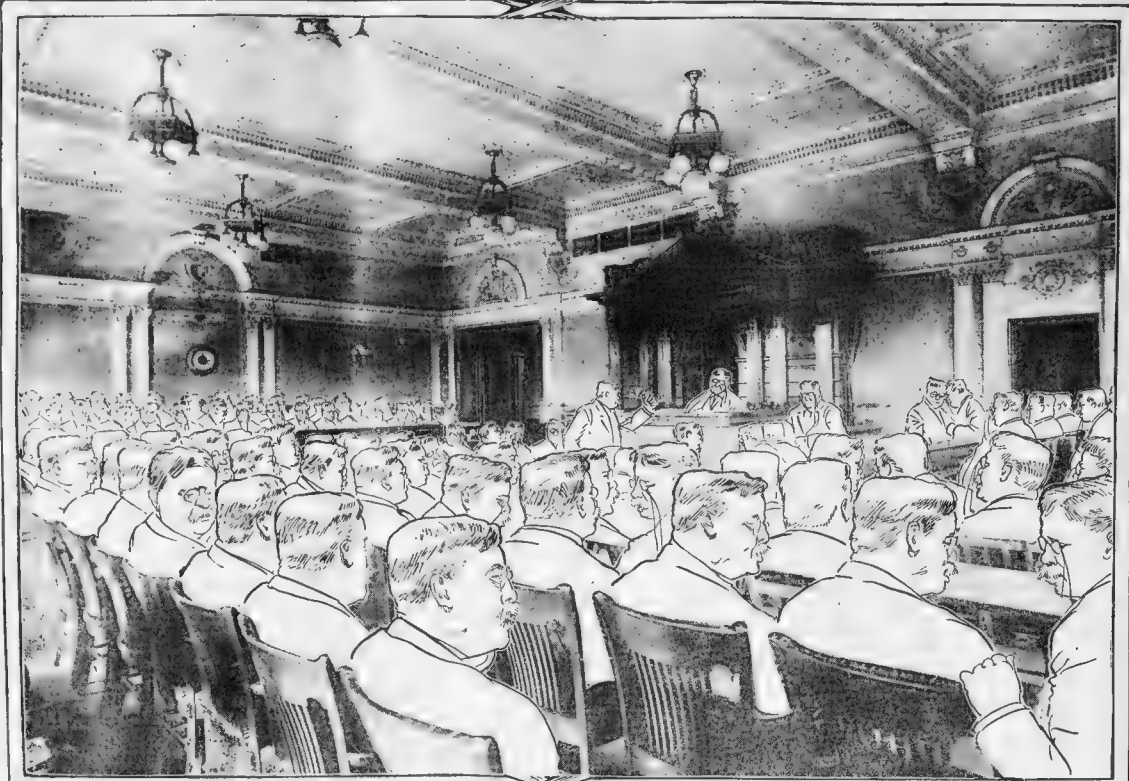

Here at the Syracuse trial, in population 137,219, the trial is being held in the Onondaga Court House, which was built in 1892 and is one of the finest in the State. The trial is being held in the grand jury room, which is a large room with a high ceiling and a large chandelier. The trial is being held in the grand jury room, which is a large room with a high ceiling and a large chandelier.

AND JIM McGRATH, TOO—
And how about Jim McGrath? He is a well-known actor and is here in Syracuse for the trial. He is a well-known actor and is here in Syracuse for the trial.

NOTHING BUT THE TRIAL—
The trial is the only thing that is going on in Syracuse. The trial is the only thing that is going on in Syracuse.

A comparison of the trial with the trial in Boston. The trial in Boston was a trial of a trial. The trial in Boston was a trial of a trial.

Mr. Chanler's Weird Screens the Newest Fashionable Fad. Fantasies Radiant With Metals in High Relief

Contrast Between the Oriental and Christian Religions.

"Columbus on His Way."

"Columbus Arrives."—One of Three Maroon Velvet Panels for Mrs.
E. H. Harriman's Country Place at Arden, N. Y.

PROBABLY nothing produced in the way of decorative art is more distinctively fantastic in design and technique than are the screens which Mr. Robert W. Chanler has painted for the country and town houses of several celebrities in New York society. On this page are reproduced three striking examples executed for Mrs. E. H. Harriman and one for Mrs. John J. Chapman.

The large reproduction, weirdest of the group, represents a fragment of a panel called "Death and Life," which was exhibited at the Architectural League, where it caused much discussion. By means of highly original symbolism Christian and Oriental religions are contrasted. While their adherents pursue these separate paths a skeleton figure of Death stands by piping the same summons to all.

Other well-known patrons of Mr. Chan-ler's fantastic art productions are Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Richard Aldrich, Mrs. Temple Emmett, Henry Claws, Jr., Lloyd Warren and J. B. Thomas.

Mr. Chanler's work, whatever the spirit of the design, is fundamentally decorative. He places many of his designs with gold, copper, silver or aluminum, which gives them in combination with their high relief, a peculiar brilliance. These methods have been approved by the art connoisseurs of Europe, in spite of results which are sometimes grotesque. His productions are always exceedingly rich and elaborate and for the reason they are not suitable to a wife's surroundings.

It has come to be virtually accepted proof of wealth to possess a Chanler screen or panel. This fact aside from Chanler's undoubted artistic originality and merit—is possibly one of the causes of the present fad for his creations.

Wang and Park (2005) examined the impact of the Internet on the fashion retail industry. They found that the Internet has significantly increased the visibility of fashion brands and has allowed consumers to access a wider range of fashion products. This has led to a decline in the market share of traditional brick-and-mortar retailers. However, the Internet has also created new opportunities for fashion retailers to reach a global audience and to offer personalized shopping experiences. Wang and Park (2005) conclude that the Internet has fundamentally changed the fashion retail landscape and that retailers must adapt to these changes to remain competitive.

Why Her Ladyship, Lady Ida Sitwell, Was

Astonishing Revelations of the Bar to Swindle a Rich and Social Woman by Alluring Offers of Intrigue in the Aristocratic Society and the King

The Handsome and Distinguished Lady Ida Sitwell, Wife of Sir George Sitwell and Sister of the Earl of Londesborough, Who Has Been Sent to Jail.

Lady Ida Sitwell's Distinguished Social Lineage.

LADY IDA SITWELL, who has just been sentenced to jail for three months for swindling an elderly man, belongs to one of the most distinguished families in England, and her lineage is of similar distinction. Her father was Lady Ida Emily Sitwell, daughter of the first Earl of Londesborough, and her brother is Sir William Sitwell, second and present Viscount Ramcliffe of North Riding of Yorkshire. Her mother, Lady Ida Emily Sitwell, was of the Victorian Order, etc., and her family is one of the richest and most distinguished in England. The Earl of Londesborough owns 52,000 acres of land in Yorkshire. His country seat is at Londesborough Park, Market Weighton.

Blankney Hall, Lincoln and Londesborough Park, Yorkshire, are the family seats. The first Earl of Londesborough, the late King Edward, was the father of Lady Ida. The family has always been very rich and philanthropic, and has been a London York family of fashionable country houses and fine estates in England. It was in Yorkshire society that King Edward became involved in the celebrated Tranby Croft scandal. The present Earl is vice-admiral of Yorkshire, honorary colonel of the East Yorkshire regiment, a magistrate, and holds many other offices. The lady's mother was Lady Edith Frances Wilhelmina Somerset, daughter of the Duke of Beaufort, and he is married to Lady Grace Augusta Fane, daughter of the Earl of Westmoreland. By descent or marriage he is related to nearly all the titled families in England. He is a great collector of art and books, and is a great patron of architecture, art and the history of families and houses. He publishes books on these subjects. In society he is regarded as eccentric.

THE trial and conviction in London of Lady Ida Sitwell, wife of Sir George Sitwell and sister of the Earl of Londesborough, has been an extraordinary revelation of the methods of titled persons who sell their influence to get rich persons into aristocratic society.

Novels have been now described how English titled women took money for introducing rich Americans to England's choicest circles or for launching the debutante daughter of a British soapmaker on the social sea. In one way or another, many allusions have been made to the practices of those who sell their lineage and influence to the highest bidder. Advertisements have even appeared in English newspapers in which anonymous titled ladies have offered their services to social climbers.

Continental noblemen have been involved in lawsuits in which marriage brokers and syndicates alleged that they had advanced money to enable them to marry American or other heiresses. For instance, a syndicate and Prince Miguel of Braganza, who married Miss Anita Stewart, for $1,000,000 which it was alleged had been advanced to promote his matrimonial fortunes. Then, again, when William Waldorf Astor entered English society, a well-known English Countess observed his daughter, and it was understood that she was well paid for her trouble.

All these things have made more or less impression, but the majority of English people would have refused to believe that their oldest and proudest families were selling their social influence and even swindling their progenies.

That is why Lady Ida Sitwell's case is so interesting, because here we have legal proof in court that a noblesman of the highest position, a member of the King's dynasty, had been consorting with two money lenders' "touts" to swindle a rich, foolish and pitiable old woman after a long series of disreputable social intrigues.

Lady Ida Sitwell was charged before Judge Darling at the Central Criminal Court, London, with conspiring with Julian Field and Oliver Herbert to defraud Miss Frances Bennett Dobbs of $30,000 by means of bills of exchange, or notes, which should have been paid to her.

Lady Ida, a woman of forty-five, but quite youthful looking, appeared very calm and haughty in court. She is tall and slender, and seemed in fine physical condition, although her doctor said she suffered from nervous trouble.

From the evidence it appeared that Lady Ida had been in pecuniary difficulties for many years, and had constantly incurred debts which she was unable to pay out of her private income and allowance. She had resorted to various discreditable expedients to raise money. She had, for instance, induced her son, a boy of nineteen, serving as an officer in the Eleventh Hussars, to borrow money from other young officers for her.

Twice before, when her husband was unable to pay her debts, her brother, Lord Londesborough, had done so, but before this case he had grown tired of the habit.

About 1911 Lady Ida found she had many thousands of pounds of pressing debts, including notes and obligations which had to be met. A titled friend then introduced her to Julian Field, a money lender's agent or "tout." Field had been at Harrow, the famous English school, and at Nerton College, Oxford, and in spite of his occupation was a man of good social position.

"I saw invitations on his mantelpiece from the best people," remarked Lady Ida.

Field was to touch with Herbert, originally a private detective, who had been appointed "business agent" by Miss Frances Bennett Dobbs, a wealthy middle-aged spinster, residing at No. 19 North Side, Strandham Common. Herbert, a young man, had stimulated Miss Dobbs's confidence in him by hinting of marriage to her, although he was already married.

Field proposed to Lady Ida Sitwell that, with Herbert's assistance, they should induce Miss Dobbs to sign two notes for $15,000 each in order to relieve Lady Ida's wants. In return Miss Dobbs was to enjoy all the social advantages that familiarity with a person of Lady Ida's rank would procure.

"I know an old lady who has $200,000 to $300,000 a year, owns the Goldsmith's Company and half of Regent street," was the alluring picture Field drew of Miss Dobbs to Lady Ida.

While hatching this precious scheme, the money lender's "tout" also wrote to Lady Ida Sitwell:

"The social recognition you will obtain for her (Miss Dobbs) for her helping you by accepting your bill, was a quick pro quo, and nothing to be ashamed of. It is done by men and women every day."

"Look at the shoals of Yankee women Lady—brink out for money, and she is only one of many thousands." Miss Dobbs has been represented, by her agent, as a rich London landowner, until recently a recluse, awakening from her torpor and being drowsy of enjoying some social recognition.

Illuminating Bits of Evidence at the Trial

QUESTION—Did you say you would either allow the person money in compensation or use your social influence on the person's behalf?

Lady Ida Sitwell—I do not remember.

Q—Did you write this letter, saying, "Of course, I will do everything in my power to get her into the society she requires. That lies in the hollow of my hands?" (Letter placed in evidence.)

Lady Ida Sitwell—Yes.

Q—Did you write this letter saying, "I find Glass is only twenty. My boy thinks if he were with him for a few days he could get hold of him, and he quite hopes, if he joins the Eleventh Hussars, there must be some boy he could get hold of?" (Letter placed in

*Lady Duff-Gordon Describes the Newest,

But whatever it is, there it is. These people with all their wild ideas invent things, and come up and invent some new color of things, and arrangements that is one of the facts. I think of the following seasons' note—and certainly distress the whole

In America one seldom sees these little people. There is no one here of their type, but as there is no life of just the kind to represent, Nor is it necessary at all that you should have other persons as your own representative dancers and actresses will "take the tip" and create these interesting things in the same way. All of kinds is a spice of ingenuity, originality and daring.

Among the last lot of stage clothes I have de-these cunning little people with the big courage that is so necessary to push along the wheel of progress.

They overdo, enlunge and exaggerate. It is true - to improve them with that that is necessary, just as fully as they do in his line of endeavor. Afterwards, when one has inoculated others with the idea, the exaggeration and over-emphasis are taken out and the new idea in full strength and real beauty is all that remains.

On this I thought one logically at this point: I like up the material of this decorative in fashion. I like it because it is a reminder of a way often of many of my things that they are "so impractical." Now, a person who really dresses to be decorative is, as a rule, not a business person. Her only aim is to be decorative and to attract attention. But it is in her decorative fashion in the new and original idea, and always that idea can be adapted to the need of others not so decorative or who wish to attract so much at last. The new fashion—tinted down and refined to suit the world on the outer side of the footlights and still retaining all its originality and charm.

Look at this new window pane hat. Of course, I can hear some of you American ladies exclaiming, "Never!" But let me hasten to explain. This may not be for you personally, but please understand that this hat and many other more striking things are worn almost unnoticed at the Paris races meetings, and it is the modification and the adaptation of those that eventually reach America, as this modification will, in this case, eventually reach you.

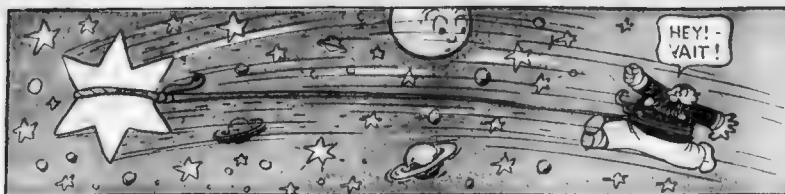

This widow pine has is nothing more or less than an eighteenth century form worn so low over the face that it is impossible for one to see without the transparency in front. It is composed of practically blue acetate over a silver colored fan of very fine transparent composition somewhat like celluloid, the blue giving a particularly attractive appearance to the eyes inside. The back of the face is turned up with a large bouquet of flowers that repeats the garland around the front.

In the top right hand corner we have another of the zebra effects I spoke of the other week—in black indestructible voile. She reminds one of the white queen in Alice in Wonderland, with the Va Dyke underskirt and her graduated tub shape figure. The white lines are composed of Russian braid. Black and white buttons follow the entire way down the front, both below and above the buckled waist band.

The other photograph is a natural colored tussore faced with black and white. She has the most queer aeronaut collar, rather like the top of her esacque being a complete circle many sizes too large for the head and with a strap and buckle that tighten it to much the same way that a mailbag is closed. The same buckle appears again at the wrist and leaves at the neck an unevenly pleated frill. She wears a black top hat, with a marginal plume.

The parasel is a very, very long one. And that reminds me to say that the parasele are to be things that they always ought to be—actual works of art. Both the parasele and the umbrella—did you know it?—are really of kingly and priestly origin. They were at first never intended for such common place uses as keeping off rain and sun. No, indeed! They were made for honor, for sacred umbrellas of the gods, and so on. And because they were such high symbols the best artists and weavers and craftsman and jewel makers lavished their best work on them. Then the priests used them, and nobles and nobles gave gifts to utility. But this year we are going back to origins—just as we are in dresses. You'll see some surprising ones of mine later on here, I hope.

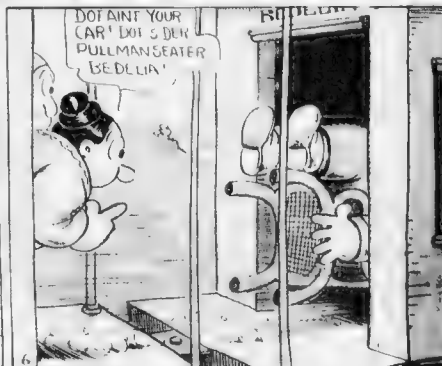

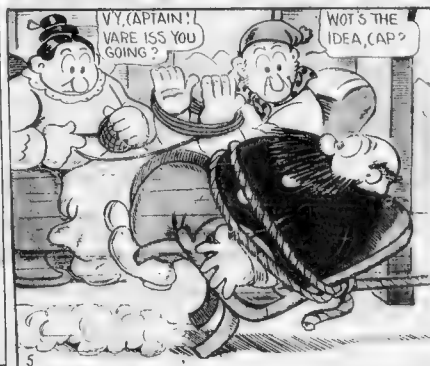

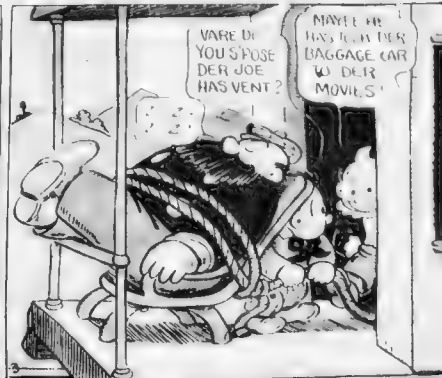

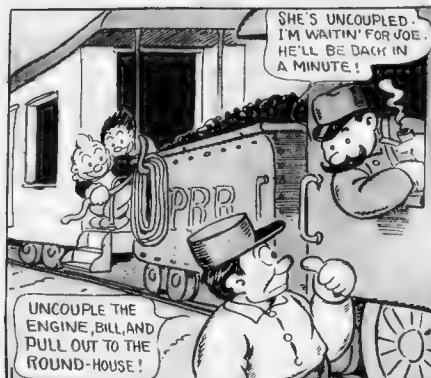

And so much for to day.

If Auntie Had Jumped There Wouldn't Have Been So Much Trouble

You Can't Uproot Character

"Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."—Matthew 16:18.

HE maker of this picture borrowed his idea from an ingenious writer of advertisements, who shows a powerful bull tugging vainly at a rope wrapped around a tree, the other end held easily by a small boy.

The picture is admirable, tells its story so plainly, and compels thought.

You can see clearly that no matter how the giant in this picture may pull and strain, he cannot get the rope from the man's hand.

Fathers and mothers ought to take this picture and, with a piece of rope or clothes-line, preach a family sermon to the boys and girls.

• • • •

Let the boy hold one end of the rope and the father the other. The boy cannot hold against the father's strength.

Wrap the rope two or three times around the leg of a chair, and the father will pull the chair and the boy.

The boy will see that wrapping the rope around a MOVABLE point is useless.

Then wrap the rope around some object that will NOT move. The boy holding one end, and the father pulling with all his strength at the other, will reproduce this picture.

The boy will discover, with surprise, that his father's superior strength amounts to nothing when the rope that both hold is wrapped a few times around a strong support.

A Child Could Hold a Team of Elephants, Pulling Their Hardest, If the Child Held a Rope as the Man Does in This Picture. But the Rope Must Be Wrapped Around Something Solid

After you have made this clear to the children, you can deliver your family sermon, using this picture as a text.

The whole of life is a tug-of-war. YOU are pulling at one end and gigantic forces pull at the other.

A man left to himself, standing alone with his own strength against temptation and evil in all its forms, is weak and helpless.

If you had to hold a rope against a giant you would look for a strong tree, one that could not be uprooted, wrap your rope around that, then stand and let the giant pull.

The life of man is an open plain; no ready-made trees are to be found upon it. Man must create his own defense, and that defense is CHARACTER.

If you have the rope of your life wound around strong character, then you will stand safe against all pulling, you will control yourself instead of being controlled by others and by other forces.

Character is a tree of slow growth; we do not get it ready made. It must be cared for day by day and year by year.

Every day of good conduct makes it stronger, every folly weakens it.

Temptation resisted builds up character and its strength, weakness and folly tear it down.

Talk to your boys and girls about character, what it means, how it is developed.

Tell them that it has got to be built slowly, as a man with his hammer and chisels works on stone. Character comes from a Greek word "charasso," meaning "to engrave."

Strong character in a man is engraved slowly by the good thoughts, the good efforts, the good days of his life.

Character grows bigger and stronger as long as man lives. And once fully grown, it is a possession forever.

Man may lose strength, health, money, but while CHARACTER remains, he is still a man, and fate cannot harm him.

• • • •

The greatest thing in the greatest man is CHARACTER.

Washington was a giant in strength, fighter of extraordinary courage, patient devoted—his real greatness was CHARACTER.

He might have declared himself King, but his character made it impossible for him to betray the principle that led him to rebel against the English King. He is the greatest man in our history, because he is the greatest character in our history.

When we think of Lincoln, we think of a character as steadfast and as deeply rooted as this tree in the picture.

You read character in his earnest face; you see it in the patience with which he endured the stupidity of his assistants, the cruel criticism of his fellow men, and all the burden that fate put upon his shoulders.

He too was a powerful man, a giant in strength, a man of brilliant intellect, but all of his qualities were as nothing compared to that CHARACTER.

This nation is founded upon two rocks—the character of Washington, who established the nation, and the character of Lincoln, who saved the nation.

• • • •

Little boys, and big men, get tired of doing every day what they OUGHT to do.

You can encourage the boys, and the men should find encouragement for themselves in the fact that every day of good work, self control, truth telling, resisting temptation means just so much added to character and its strength.

The giant oak tree in the field, representing powerful character, is the result of days, years and scores of years of steady growth.

You can build up a character, as the man builds up his fortune, every day, adding so much. You cannot count it or weigh it as gold is counted, BUT IT IS THERE.

• • • •

Character is in the face of man, and you see there also the lack of character. How many weak faces tell the tale of feeble and weak purposes, emotions uncontrolled?

And how admirably character stands out in the face that possesses it.

The name Peter means "a rock," and Christ said to His disciple

"Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it."

The words of that magnificent text are written inside the great dome of St. Peter's in Rome.

Christ built His Church upon the rock of St. Peter. The strength of that disciple thus honored was CHARACTER.

• • • •

Build your character day by day, and in that character you will have power against evil, the foundation upon which a life of success and happiness may safely rest.

Those who do not know humanity say "Every man has his price." But forunately for the world, real character is a thing that cannot be bought.

There are millions of men and tens of millions of women above all price.

They stand firm, they are founded upon the rock of character and cannot be moved.

• • • •

You can do good to your children by explaining this picture to them, and good to yourself by thinking about it.

For we build character every day, and those who have neglected the building may still build, if they will.

Just as man can begin to save money any day, piling one dollar upon another, so man with a higher ambition can begin to create character every day, piling one determined act, one day of good living upon another.

There is no real happiness except in peace of mind.

THERE IS NO REAL PEACE OF MIND EXCEPT IN GOOD CHARACTER.

"What does it mean?" I asked.

"Kennedy was in a brown study. Suddenly he clapped his hands."

"I think I have it," he exclaimed. "Water, take this turpentine. Go up and across the circle out. If you need more, get it. Only remove every trace of the circle."

[illegible]

Quite early the next morning, however, we got around to the laboratory again to prepare for the visit of Lieutenant Waters in response

[illegible][illegible]

The old warehouse was destroyed with the detonation. It seemed as if the whole top of it were blown to pieces.

[illegible][illegible]

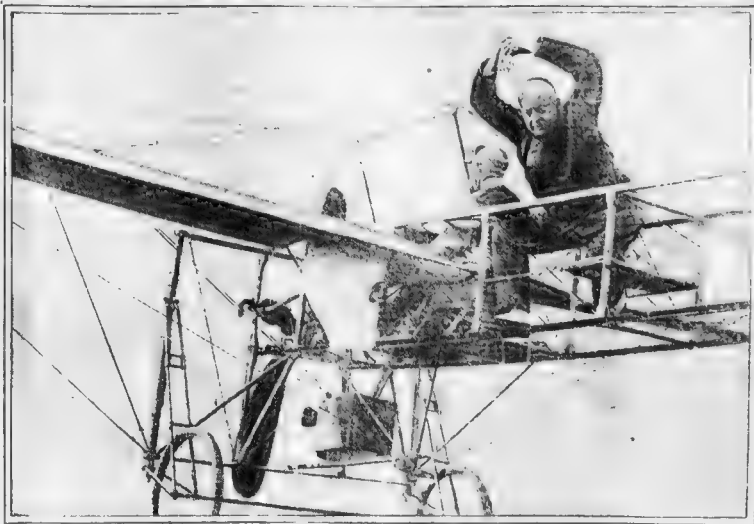

"Kennedy must have changed the car," he cried stoutly in desperation. "He's the only one who could have saved him. If I failed, he was on, pending. It was a mistake. Listen, we'll make it good."

"How?" demanded Wu, replacing the knife to the evident relief of Sprague.

"If you will come with me, I will show you," responded Kennedy.

As Sprague led in Wu and Long S.S. orderly and bespectacled inventor was at work at a bare "Press down on it," suggested Schindler. "We did so. The uncanny little wheel seemed actually to resent being forced to move out of the place in which it had been started rotating."

"Now!" Ground Out Wu, Releasing a Bunch of the Deadly Arrow

GIVE CONSTANTINOPLE TO BELGIANS---FERRERO

"Protected by a Newly Renovated Europe the Little State Could Do Marvellous Things"

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO;

The Noted Historian.

It is not easy to describe to American readers the stupor and anxiety raised in Europe by the attempt of the Franco-English fleet to force the Dardanelles. For a month past nothing else has been spoken of—nothing else thought of. Who pays any more attention to the cruel battles of Poland and Flanders? Everybody is only wondering if the English-French will gain possession of Constantinople.

The taking of Constantinople was the most important event of those first nine months of war. It will be a more clamorous event even than the battle of the Marne, that made such an impression because it destroyed the illusion held by so many after the war of 1870, that the German army were invincible.

The interest in Constantinople is not to be wondered at. After Athens and Rome, Constantinople is the most celebrated of ancient cities. Like Rome, although in a smaller way, Constantinople has always been one of the great seats of history from the day 1403 years ago when Constantine founded it "Jubente Deo"—by the command of God. The pagan statue of Fortune which the founder carried in his hands in the solemn Christian procession at the celebration has never deserted the city, not even in the days of most bitter strife.

New Grandeur for Constantinople.

Even today in the midst of this terrible war that is about to change so many destinies the world is looking with anxiety toward Constantinople, already shrinking—not from the imminent ruin of the empire that for five centuries has been its seat in that city, but from the new grandeur and power that will replace it. No one knows what this new grandeur and power will be, but no one doubts that the moment will come when it will sink down before the triumph of Propaganda a new radiant civilization will somewhere illumine those dark days.

It is not, however, that would appear that the English and France advancing toward the Straits are counting out the hours of Constantinople. What has been the reason for the greatness of Constantinople? Why did Constantinople take its crown away from Rome, and leave it to the city that he called "New Rome" on the shores of the Bosphorus, and that separates Europe from Asia? It is not, however, that it was the only place in the history of the world—without any complicated reasons; some of the most ordinary the great number of people, but they were not rich, because the principal reason was geographical.

It is all penetrating eye of the great Emperor who was able to read in that emerald book—the East—where that on the shore of the Bosphorus was the best place for the capital of an empire partly in Europe and partly in Asia, with the richest and most populated provinces of Asia Minor and on the Balkan peninsula.

Constantinople had remained in the hands of the empire, because under Augustus it was not only a rich and became next to the city of Rome, and it was the only place so that the empire had immense interests in Europe and in the Orient, on the Rhine and on the Nile. Italy was in an excellent position, and the city of Constantinople was the office of the great emperor, and the city of Constantinople was the office of the great emperor, and the city of Constantinople was the office of the great emperor.

In the first century of the West, and in the second century of the East, Constantinople grew in population, grew in wealth, and grew in power. It was the city of the great emperor, and the city of the great emperor, and the city of the great emperor. It was the city of the great emperor, and the city of the great emperor, and the city of the great emperor.

graded, Asia Minor remained a land relatively thinly populated and prosperous, and in the Balkan countries a vigorous warlike population flourished, from which the warlike empire recruited the flower of its legions. The centre of the empire was then out of place, so Constantine moved the capital of the empire into the heart of that which was the vital part between the provinces that furnished him his money and the provinces that furnished him his soldiers.

For the same reason Constantinople became the metropolis of the Ottoman Empire. The days of its splendor the Ottoman Empire was an empire partly Asiatic and partly European. Constantinople by its splendor, its wealth, and its position was the capital of the empire. It was a comfortable capital, because being on the Bosphorus it enjoyed all the advantages of the sea for communication with the world, and it was easily defended by blocking the straits as an inland city. Constantinople remained the metropolis of the Ottoman Empire a long time after the fatal power of the key has only been a memory.

If the reasons of Constantinople's greatness are the foregoing, must we conclude that the ancient city is in danger of death? Constantinople is the natural capital of the empire placed astride between Asia and Europe, occupying Asia Minor on one side and the Balkan peninsula on the other.

Constantinople is a country possessing vast territories in Asia Minor and in Europe, or its capital will not be centrally located. Constantinople cannot long remain the capital of an empire whose frontiers toward Europe lie in Adrianople. So there seems to be no other way than for Turkey to withdraw the territory that Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia took away from her in the last war—that way to reach become a European power, or even admitting that her last hour as an Asiatic power has not yet struck, to move her capital into Asia.

The Future of the Imperial City.

So the conclusion must be that Constantinople is in danger of death. The remains of the city of Constantinople, that day when we see Constantinople fall into the allies' hands it will find death in a modern republican city, rising on its ruins. The two empires and the two religions that within its walls dictated the laws to so many people. Clothed in the few remaining latter of its Imperial purple, the once proud capital of the Imperial city, the once proud capital of the Imperial city, the once proud capital of the Imperial city.

But they who reason in this way, believing in the ruin of the ancient capital, are wrong. Those who are right are those who believe in the great future of the city. Constantinople is on the verge of falling under the blows of the French and English, but only to immediately arise again to a new life. It can remain the capital of the great empire, and the city of the great emperor, and the city of the great emperor.

Constantinople is a country possessing vast territories in Asia Minor and in Europe, or its capital will not be centrally located. Constantinople cannot long remain the capital of an empire whose frontiers toward Europe lie in Adrianople. So there seems to be no other way than for Turkey to withdraw the territory that Greece, Bulgaria and Serbia took away from her in the last war—that way to reach become a European power, or even admitting that her last hour as an Asiatic power has not yet struck, to move her capital into Asia.

The Benefit of the Bosphorus.

WHY THE BOSTON AMERICAN LEADS IN CIRCULATION

REASON NUMBER FOUR: Because It Has the Most Brilliant and Able Staff of Contributors and the Greatest Writers

By the character of a newspaper's contributors may be measured the quality of its circulation.

In every department which goes to make up the BOSTON AMERICAN will be found not only authentic information, with accurate summaries of various day-to-day situations and true reflections on things as they are, but also the most talented writers of fact and fiction, poetry and prose—the ablest authorities of the day on every vital subject, and the cleverest of artists and illustrators.

No newspaper in the world has shown greater enterprise and foresight in handling the news and views of the greatest war the world has ever known than the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Hilaire Belloc, the foremost military critic of Europe, has summarized the activities of the war in a series of the most brilliant war articles ever printed.

The list of contributors who have written special articles on the war for the AMERICAN include such names as Rudyard Kipling, Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells, Guglielmo Ferrero, Gabriele D'Annunzio, Pierre Loti, General Count von Bernhardt, Israel Zangwill and Anthony Hope.

Among the BOSTON AMERICAN'S regular staff of war correspondents are such men as Francis Lavelle Murray, Edward Lyell Fox, C. F. Bertelli, Herbert Temple, Stanley Washburne, Granville Fortesque, Brixton D'Allaire, Orton Tewson, Frederick Werner and Frederick Rennet.

The series of remarkable achievements since the beginning of the great war, which has won such a great measure of success for this newspaper, is in addition to the high standard of quality to be found throughout the pages of the BOSTON AMERICAN in its daily and Sunday issues.

EDITORIAL AND SPECIAL CONTRIBUTORS

Among the regular and special contributors whose co-operation has helped to give the BOSTON AMERICAN its pre-eminence in the New England field are the following:

GUGLIELMO FERRERO, the great Italian historian, whose works in the war have been recognized as among the most masterly summing up of causes and effects that have been printed anywhere.

ISRAEL ZANGWILL, the Zionist leader and dramatist who has written a number of striking articles on the war.

ARNOLD BENNETT, the popular English novelist and author.

ARTHUR J. BRISBANE, perhaps the most widely known English writer in the United States, a man whose essays are read daily by many millions.

ROBERT D. BRANDEIS, the famous lawyer and publicist who is known as "the people's lawyer" for his skill, energy and ability in fighting for the common man.

JOHN HAWTHORNE, famous novelist and essayist whose early life in New England under the roof of his famous father has placed him in close touch with the best traditions of New England life.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX, favorite poet and brilliant essayist, perhaps the favorite of all living women writers.

ELBERT HUBBARD, author, lecturer and philosopher, the Sage of East Aurora, is one of the most facile and forceful writers of the day.

G. K. CHESTERTON, the English essayist and humorist whose contributions are a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN.

LUCILE (LADY DUFF GORDON), titled English modiste, style dictator of fashionable femininity of two continents. Her illustrated fashion articles in the AMERICAN present authentic information.

GARRETT P. SERVISS, a scientist of rare attainments whose specialty is treating of the latest developments of science in a manner that is easily understandable to the lay mind.

JAMES J. MONTAGUE, a humorist with rare talent for putting into laugh-provoking verse interesting episodes of the day.

DOROTHY DIX, brilliant writer and satirist. Her articles, timely and thoughtful, have a rare quality of humor.

JACK LONDON, famous novelist whose stories are one of the features of the monthly Sunday magazine issued with the Sunday AMERICAN.

EDWIN MARKHAM, poet, philosopher and critic, author of "The Man with the Hoe." His contributions to the AMERICAN embrace a wide range of topics.

PROFESSOR EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN, scientist, whose writings for the AMERICAN are interesting, as well as educational.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

WILLIAM H. ROSS, financial editor of the Boston AMERICAN, is a keen analyst of conditions affecting Boston, with a big following among the financial and commercial interests of New England.

R. C. FORBES, a financial writer second to none in his field, whose articles on general financial conditions have inspired interest and confidence on all sides.

EDWARD LOW RANLETT, cotton expert, associated with the cotton market for many years.

JOSEPH F. PRITCHARD, famous grain expert. His articles are famous for their accurate reflections of grain market conditions.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORTS.

A. H. C. MITCHELL, author of baseball stories and general sporting expert.

DAMON RUNYON, considered the most popular baseball writer in America, also famous for his descriptions of big pugilistic events.

WILLIAM MULDOON, famous expert in physical development, who supplies signed articles on the care and development of the body.

WALTER CAMP, dean of American sporting authorities, is a regular contributor to the AMERICAN.

CHICK EVANS, H. P. FARRINGTON and FRANCIS QUIMET, who handle golf news and features, making the AMERICAN'S golf department one of the strongest in the country.

HARRY THOMAS, yachting expert. In his field he heads the list of New England writers.

Six Reasons Why the BOSTON AMERICAN Leads in Circulation

- 1—Scrupulous cleanliness the BOSTON AMERICAN is strictly a HOME paper.
- 2—Best war correspondents leads in war news and photographs.
- 3—Most enterprising news service from all over the globe.
- 4—Most brilliant and able staff of contributors and the greatest writers.
- 5—First in illustrations, first in cartoons and first in good humor.
- 6—Unswerving devotion to the interests of the people.

New York policeman found a girl parading Fifth avenue morning in her nightie, and they arrested her.

James, to see. No sure and ... a week.

At the Ancients' Circus==Some Views by Moynahan

A PERFECTLY NEUTRAL DINNER.

CHAS. G. CAMPBELL CAPT. BRUCE AND SERGT. WETMORE AS JUNG BIRDS.

Moynahan of the American's staff attended the banquet and circus of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company the other evening, and has taken some of the liberty usually accorded to humorists. The banquet wholly justified the international fame of the Ancients as renowned hosts and royal good fellows.

"I Am the Almighty God"

Genesis, Chap. 17, v. 1.

Rev. "Billy" Sunday's Idea of GOD, Our HEAVENLY FATHER

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

GOD can do great things with little people.

God is the same yesterday, today and forever.

God can use even a snake to preach His Gospel.

God can't forget; if He did, He wouldn't be God.

God made this world for us to have a good time in.

God likes to work with good tools as well as we do.

God never uses a 13-inch gun to kill a humming bird.

God looks upon a sinner as the State does upon a criminal.

God Almighty will have the best or He won't touch it at all.

God has marked out the same path for both men and women.

If God gave us our deserts, we would all be in hell long ago.

The best God says is only a hint at the real glory of His promises.

Many of God's best helpers have been taken from the devil's front ranks.

God has more respect for an out-and-out infidel than for a four-flusher.

It makes no difference to God whether one wears a plug hat or a hairpin.

God asks some things that are hard, but never any that are unreasonable.

You can't explain God like you can two and two make four. Certainly not.

God never made hell for man. He made hell for the devil and his angels.

God likes to see a man leave the cellar and go to the roof garden of life.

God thinks the making of a man more important than the making of a world.

God is creator, man His creature. God is infinite, man finite. God can do all things.

If you're baldheaded when you get converted, God won't grow hair on your head.

God sees everything. Are you willing that the world shall see you as God sees you?

The trouble with many today is that when God calls them they are somewhere else.

God will let you go your own gain. He won't coerce any man into being a Christian.

God gives everybody a chance to go to heaven, so don't be a fool and refuse to accept it.

God doesn't want you to serve Him through fear, but because you realize His love for you.

God won't hold you responsible for not doing what you haven't got sense enough to do.

God wants men to be mountain movers. God will take care of your failures. He will help you.

God never owned a slave. God doesn't want you to do anything that you can't do without protest.

God has a perfect right to tell you what to do before He will grant you pardon, understand that.

God knows how to run His business. Don't be a fool and try to tell Him how to run His business.

You go along picking up a few crumbs here and there, when God is ready to shake a bakeshop at you.

God can do great things with little people. With a worm he can thresh a mountain if it will hold still.

God might have sent an angel down here to preach, but He said: "Bill, you go to Paterson and do it."

God appreciates the man who will go on the firing line and become bullet meat in the service of the cross.

God despises a compromiser; He despises a man who trims his sail to catch a passing breeze of popularity.

You handcuff God, you put out your own eyes and stab yourself when you turn your back on the Lord.

God didn't send His son into the world to condemn it. It was already condemned, and He sent Jesus to save it.

God doesn't care if we baptize every fifteen minutes or catechise every half hour; it's the faith that counts.

God says to me: "Bill, you will have to do what I say," and I don't want to go to hell, so I say, "All right, Lord."

Before God undertook to say much about salvation He filled the Bible full of pictures to show us what it was like.

God is nearer to you than the friend by your side. He is easily found when you seek Him with a willing heart.

God can make diamonds out of dwarfed, twisted, crooked humanity that never had a chance to be any different.

God is a revelation, not an explanation. God never did anything useless. He gave us a church because we need it.

God sets no double standard for the Christian life. God commands you to give one-tenth of your income to Him.

God doesn't run any excursions to heaven. You must pay the full fare. Your religion is worth just what it costs you.

God says: "You can spurn my love and trample the blood under your feet; but if you seek my pardon, I will forgive you."

God says: "Here is the law. If you do wrong, here is the penalty. If God had no penalty for sin, we'd laugh Him to scorn.

Don't think God has forsaken you when the hearse is at the door. Don't throw away your ticket when you enter the tunnel.

All God's promises are based on the five great pillars of religion—faith, justice, grace, truth and power. They cannot fail.

Not only does God promise you salvation on the ground that you repent and accept Christ, but He offers you eternal life as a gift.

You just dismiss the idea that God owes you salvation. He gives you the opportunity, and if you don't improve it you will go to hell.

Any man that thinks he can improve on God is a fool, as big a fool as the man who thinks he can make honey better than the bee.

You cannot please God and be a card player; you cannot please God and attend cheap-skate shows; you cannot serve God and the devil.

God never had anything but good, kind thoughts toward you, and for a man to curse God because He wants to keep him out of hell is the limit.

God wants your body with blood in it. God turns down the man who merely lives a moral life and does not accept the religion of Jesus Christ.

God's best gifts can't be bought with money. He will not withhold any good thing. And God can make Uncle Sam look like a counterfeit penny.

If you defy God He will grind you to powder; but if you serve God He will look after you and comfort you with all the love of a mother for her babe.

God wants brains as well as bones and muscles. We ought to do our best thinking for God. God is the greatest business there is, and He wants the best He can get.

If God could get the preachers of this country converted they'd stop fighting theological sham battles and we would see the greatest things in religion we can imagine.

God hasn't one plan of salvation for the millionaire and another for the hobo. He has the same plan for everybody. God isn't going to ask you whether you like it or not, either.

God writes his judgment on what He sees in the heart, not on the color of your hair or how many teeth you've got. Many people measure God, but deny His measurement of them.

God says to me: "You go down and stand and tell them that I will forgive them. Tell them, yes, that they have broken my law. Tell them, yes, in their fear and knowledge of sin they are getting away. They are trying to drown it in pleasure."

A man said to me: "It was a mighty little thing to drive Adam and Eve out of the Garden of Eden because they ate an apple." God don't give a rap about the apple. It was the principle—whether man should bow to God or God bow to man.

Mrs. "Billy" Sunday's Sermon to Women Only

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company. Royal British Bazaar, London.

FRIENDS:
We read in the book of Ezekiel: "When Zion is in travail sons and daughters are born into the kingdom of God. Every mother knows what that means."

Being born into the kingdom of God, like the physical birth, is attended by anxiety and effort, and after the birth is growth, again anxiety and effort.

Do you think that my husband, talking to the great throng at the tabernacle today, came into his place of power and influence just by the being born into the kingdom of God? No. It is not enough to be born into the kingdom. You must suffer and fight to remain there. Mr. Sunday was converted twenty-nine years ago. It has taken him all that time to reach the place where he is today.

And now it is hard for him, physically hard. Ever since we started this evangelistic work, sixteen years ago, I have taken care of Daddy and made a home for him wherever he went. It has been pretty hard sometimes to take care of all the outside work connected with the campaign and look after the babies and Billy, he more of a baby than the others. Daddy always wears himself out by his preaching. He gives himself to the public so thoroughly that his violent efforts threaten his health, and that's where he needs me. He would wait to wait an hour if I didn't keep near to bolster him up. After a sermon he is perspiring at every pore and his hair hangs in a mat about his face. He's just like all men. He likes to be babied and taken care of. You will make a great mistake, you wives who want to be good wives—and all of you do—if you don't treat your husband, now and then or often, as a child. For no true word was ever spoken than that men will always remain boys.

These meetings are a dreadful strain upon him, both physically and mentally, and as I have said, he's worn out when he's through. After every afternoon meeting I always hurry him home and make him put on a dressing gown and slippers, and utterly relax. I never trust at him no matter where we are, to dress for dinner. That's a big rock on which the family ship often goes to pieces, that insistence of the wife that the husband must dress for dinner. Don't be cruel. If he is happier in his shirt-sleeves than with a heavy coat on don't quarrel about the shirt-sleeves. There are prettier things in the world than those shirt sleeves, but there are also more important things. Your husband's health and the soundness of his nerves and the sweetness of his temper, for instance.

It's my job and every wife's job to make life run smoothly in the home. Billy's is to meet people and harvest souls for the kingdom. That's one of the secrets of happiness in married life, to find out your job in the home and do it with all your might. I never even consider not going with Mr. Sunday to the meetings. This Sunday meeting was an exception, due to his wish to speak to the men alone. Were it not for that I would be near him in case he needs me and to let him know he may depend upon me.

Don't expect married life to be a continuous path of joy, nor even of peace. There will be differences, differences that it pains you to note and to remember. But there should be no secrets. Secrets are the quicksand of married life. When you fear a discussion because you know there will be a difference of opinion better get the discussion over and agree to disagree. But have no such quarrels in your heart or home as a secret.

It is not easy to make the care of the household run on smooth tracks, but it can be done and it is the duty of us wives to see that it is done. Let your light shine from your home—light the lamp of Christianity in it and never let it go out.

I had a harder time staying in the kingdom of God than being born into it. I was converted when I was twelve. But I grew slowly in grace. I was wild. I had an ugly temper. Both are faults very distasteful to God. And I had no sense of responsibility for another soul for years. I was a lazy, indifferent Christian, or perhaps it is truer to say I was not thoroughly awake to the privileges of my state.

I continued in this state until I was eighteen and attended my first revival meeting. Not till then did I feel responsible for any other soul. Being urged to pray for the salvation of other souls I thought and thought for whom I should pray. I decided to pray for some one in my own home, my father. He was not saved. My mother was. But he had gone ahead with his business without any thought of anything except that.

I prayed and prayed. I wept and entreated the Lord to save my father. But the meeting went on. They closed and my father was still unsaved. I was discouraged and gave up praying. I thought: "What's the use? God won't answer my prayer to save my father." I was disheartened and rebellious.

After while I began again, more faithfully, but still regularly, to pray for my father's conversion. Time passed. Changes came into church and stayed there. I was too miserable to go home and face anybody. I hung around that church nearly all day, and I prayed: "Dear Lord, save my one remaining parent."

Mr. Sunday and I went to the Pacific Coast. We were gone for years. We came back for a visit. I found my father just as he had been all my life. When the time came to leave I felt very bad. When I said "Good-by" to him, I threw my arms about his neck and cried.

"Good-by, father," I said. "I hope we'll meet again, but one never knows. Remember that I am praying for you."

A strange look came into his face, the strangest look I had ever seen there.

"What do you mean?" he said.

"Why, father?" I answered, "don't you know that Billy and I have been praying for your salvation for ten years?"

"No," he answered.

"Yes," I said. "We have been in anguish for your salvation. Dear father, I wish you would accept God. You promised mother on her deathbed that you would. But if you have you have never said so."

"If you feel like that about it," he began slowly, but he was interrupted and he did not finish the sentence.

We went West, and in two weeks a letter came from a friend of mine. "I have good news for you," she wrote. "Your father has accepted God, and made a public profession of faith."

So after many years my dear father came into the vineyard. Though years pile upon years we must never become discouraged. We must keep on praying.

In one of our meetings an old lady, sixty-two years of age, began praying for light on her path. She herself was saved and she didn't know whether God expected her to do any work toward saving others or not. She talked very plainly to God.

She said: "God, you must tell me what to do. You must make clear to me what is my duty. I have never spoken to any one about his soul's salvation and I don't hanker after the job. You know, Lord, that I am timid and shy. But if you want me to try, I will."

She became convinced that it was her duty to try. At a meeting she spoke to two young men, and asked them if they were saved. One nudged the other and both laughed. The old lady was so hurt and discouraged that she went back to her seat and burst into tears.

These young men shared one room. That night about 2 o'clock one of them said:

"Are you awake?" I have been lying here-hour after hour, thinking about that old lady who spoke to us in the meeting today. I can't get her face out of my mind. Don't you think we ought to be ashamed of the way we treated her?"

"I do," answered the other. "It has worried me so that I could not sleep."

Right there they became convinced of sin. They knelt down, one on one side of the bed, the other on the other, and pledged their lives to God. One became a minister of the gospel who has brought many souls into the light. The other is a business man whose power and influence are actively for the right. Keep on praying.

People ask what is the use of intercession? I answer: Even if it does no good for its object, it will help the one who offers the prayer. What is the good of a prayer that some one asks. What is the good of a list of things to be done and that you place above your work table or in your mirror? It is a reminder to you of your duty. We remember what we have written down.

I know a woman who made a prayer list. The first name she wrote on it was her husband's.

One evening when he came home he found the list in the family Bible. The fact that his wife was praying for his salvation moved him deeply. Sitting there, thinking it over, he was convicted of sin. He was converted. The prayer list had helped him on the road to salvation. Keep on praying.

In this meeting today speak to people about their souls. Ask them if they are saved. That is what they come here for. Nobody came here expecting to see motion pictures. They have expected to be asked whether they are saved. Many persons are on the verge of starting to the altar, but, shyly, they wait for a personal invitation. I know a woman who told me that she wanted to go to the front and pledge herself to the Lord. She sat there waiting for some one to ask her to go. But no one did. She didn't go.

Do your part. Try. We are responsible for efforts, not results. Come, friends.

The Enduring Results of a "Billy" Sunday Campaign

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company. Great Britain Bazaar, London.

A TEST LETTER recently sent out by the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young of Brooklyn, for the purpose of discovering how permanent were the results of Billy Sunday's campaigns in various large cities, has resulted in a flood of replies, attesting to the lasting effects of the evangelistic revivals.

Chief among the letters received is one from Mayor Joseph G. Armstrong of Pittsburgh, Pa., where Billy Sunday gathered thousands of converts and aroused the whole city for weeks. The letter from Pittsburgh's Mayor follows:

My Dear Rev. Young:
I am in receipt of your favor relative to Rev. Sunday's campaign in Pittsburgh. In response would say that while Rev. Sunday conducted his services here he drew enormous crowds, the seating capacity of the Tabernacle, I understand, being 15,000, which was crowded afternoon and evening. There is no question in my mind that any person who ever went to hear Mr. Sunday speak could not help but be impressed, and I have no hesitation in saying that out of the thousands and thousands who heard him there must have been a great many who turned over new leaves. While I myself am not a strictly church-going man, nor a testifier, as you know, nevertheless I am glad to say that I visited the Tabernacle a number of times, and spoke on the occasion in Rev. Sunday's behalf. From my personal observation I feel that the masterful and instructive sermon delivered by him were not only beneficial to me, but also to all who heard him. (Signed) JOHN G. ARMSTRONG, Mayor.

The prime reason for Dr. Young's investigation was because of the chairmanship of the informal Committee of Presbyters and Laymen, who are endeavoring to bring Billy Sunday to Brooklyn for an evangelistic campaign.

Dr. Young's letter, which was sent to Scranton, Columbus, Noxon and several other cities and towns, besides Pittsburgh, contained the following questions:

1. What permanent effect along the lines of conversion advance has been noticeable?
2. In what respects have the churches been benefited?
3. How do the business men of the community feel on this subject?
4. Were there many thorough-going conversions?
5. Has there been any permanent change in moral conditions?

S. What as to Sabbath observance?

From Pittsburgh many other responses resulted. G. W. Wakefield, superintendent of the Oakland M. E. Church, wrote that an increase of 35 per cent in attendance had come from the Sunday campaign and was being held. An attendant at the Shady Avenue Baptist Church writes that the number of communicants have increased 50 per cent, while a gain of 500 members is reported by Edward A. Young, superintendent of the North Avenue Methodist Sunday School. The County Commissioner, J. D. O'Neill of Pittsburgh, also writes enthusiastically concerning the results of a Sunday campaign held in McKeesport, Pa., two years ago.

Part of his letter reads:

"Previous to his coming we had a wide-open town. Now we do not have any speakings, no houses of ill fame, no gambling and no grafters. There has been a wonderful improvement in the moral tone of the city. I could give you many individual instances in which it is almost miraculous the changes made in the lives of some of the men. I was also connected with the Sunday movement in Pittsburgh and at Australia. Spalding said: 'Meet us in England and play with us through England, Scotland and Wales.' I didn't go."

Ed Williamson went with them, and while they were on the ship crossing the English Channel a storm arose and the captain thought the ship would go down.

Ed dropped to his knees and prayed and said:

"God, bring this ship safe into a harbor and I promise to quit drinking and be a Christian."

Got aboard the storm and the ship went into the harbor safely. They came back to the United States and Ed came back to Chicago and started a saloon in Dearborn street. I would go through there giving tickets for the Y. M. C. A. meetings and would talk with him, and he would cry like a baby. I would go down and pray for him and would talk with him. When he died and they put him on the table and cut him open and took out his liver it was as big as a candy bucket.

Ed Williamson sat there on the street corner with me twenty-nine years ago when I said "I bid you good-by."

FRANK FLINT, Catcher.
Frank Flint, our old catcher, who caught for nineteen years, drew $2,500 a year on an average. He caught before he had chest protectors and masks and gloves. He caught bare-handed. Every bone in the ball of his hand and I can endorse his work from every point of view. Any city that can secure Mr. Sunday should be congratulated."

A. H. Price, a wealthy lumber dealer and prominent churchman of Scranton, Pa., writes enthusiastically concerning the wonderful effects of a Billy Sunday campaign in that city. Mr. Price declares that in the church he attends the mid-week prayer meeting attendance has increased from an average of 20 to 50 persons to the astonishing number of 250! Applications for a renewal of liquor licenses have fallen off and in some cases churches have been forced to build additions to accommodate the increase in attendants. Noon day prayer meetings are held in many of the big stores, and many business men are devoting their spare time to speaking at Bible classes. Mr. Price reports that at Lake Arisco, a very small town near Scranton, a Billy Sunday convert started a campaign after Sunday himself had left, and has succeeded so far in securing 400 converts.

George Hart, chairman of the Lackawanna County Prohibition Committee, situated in Scranton, also writes enthusiastically concerning the lasting results of the Sunday campaign there. He reports an increase in the Prohibition party enrollment of 180 per cent, and its vote more than doubled.

"The Rev. Charles E. Guthrie, rector of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Wilkes-Barre, leads in the responses from that city to Dr. Young's letter. 'He is bigger in influence today, and in the appreciation of his (Sunday's) work than when the campaign closed,' writes the minister. The campaign in Wilkes-Barre was held for more than two years ago."

Danmore and Noxon, Pa., are two other towns from which glowing testimonials have been received attesting to the lasting effects of the Sunday methods.

From letters received from Columbus, Ohio, it would seem that Billy Sunday started a revival there that has never stopped. A letter from a prominent churchwoman says: "We have had additions to our attendance equal to and perhaps greater since Mr. Sunday's revival there before, and just now we have had in our church a three weeks' revival, with splendid success. The cries of the pessimists were that after Mr. Sunday left that there would be a dearth of religion and people would be much harder to reach."

A prominent architect of Columbus writes that after a thorough investigation he has found that the Billy Sunday campaign in his city started the religious ball a-rolling so that it has increased in speed and power ever since. His letter is virtually a substantiation of the letter received by Dr. Young from the churchwoman of that city.

'Billy' Sunday's Three Pals---And What Became of Them

As Told by Mr. Sunday Himself.

ONCE then, twenty-nine years ago, I walked down a street in Chicago in company with some half a dozen who were famous in the world, and we went into a saloon. It was Sunday afternoon, and we talked up. We walked on down the street to the corner where a big dry goods store is now. It was a vacant lot at that time. We sat down on the curb. Along the street a company of men and women were playing on instruments—horns, flutes and slide trombones—and the others were singing the Gospel hymns that I used to hear my mother sing back in the old log cabin in Iowa, and back in the old Methodist Church where I used to go to Sunday School. And they did point out the corners of my recollection and memory a vivid picture of the scenes of other days and other faces. Many have long since turned to dust.

I sobbed and sobbed and a young man stepped out and said:

"We are going down to the Pacific Garden Mission; won't you come down to the mission? I am sure you will enjoy it."

I arose and said to the boys:

"I bid you good-by," and I turned my back on them.

Some of them laughed and turned me, one of them gave me encouragement; others never said a word. I went to the mission, lived it, and went again and again. Then, one dark, stormy night I went to the mission and dropped on my knees and gave my heart to Jesus Christ.

Ed Williamson was my shipmate, a fellow weighing 215 pounds, and a more active man you never saw.

When Spalding took the two clubs around the world I was the second man asked to sign a contract. I was sliding to second base one day—I always slid head first—and I hit a stone and cut a ligament loose in my knee. I got a doctor and had my leg fixed up, and he said to me:

"William, if you don't go on that trip I will give you a good leg."

I obeyed, and I have as good a leg today as I ever had. They offered to wait for me at Honolulu and I can endorse his work from every point of view. Any city that can secure Mr. Sunday should be congratulated."

A. H. Price, a wealthy lumber dealer and prominent churchman of Scranton, Pa., writes enthusiastically concerning the wonderful effects of a Billy Sunday campaign in that city. Mr. Price declares that in the church he attends the mid-week prayer meeting attendance has increased from an average of 20 to 50 persons to the astonishing number of 250! Applications for a renewal of liquor licenses have fallen off and in some cases churches have been forced to build additions to accommodate the increase in attendants. Noon day prayer meetings are held in many of the big stores, and many business men are devoting their spare time to speaking at Bible classes. Mr. Price reports that at Lake Arisco, a very small town near Scranton, a Billy Sunday convert started a campaign after Sunday himself had left, and has succeeded so far in securing 400 converts.

George Hart, chairman of the Lackawanna County Prohibition Committee, situated in Scranton, also writes enthusiastically concerning the lasting results of the Sunday campaign there. He reports an increase in the Prohibition party enrollment of 180 per cent, and its vote more than doubled.

"The Rev. Charles E. Guthrie, rector of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Wilkes-Barre, leads in the responses from that city to Dr. Young's letter. 'He is bigger in influence today, and in the appreciation of his (Sunday's) work than when the campaign closed,' writes the minister. The campaign in Wilkes-Barre was held for more than two years ago."

Danmore and Noxon, Pa., are two other towns from which glowing testimonials have been received attesting to the lasting effects of the Sunday methods.

From letters received from Columbus, Ohio, it would seem that Billy Sunday started a revival there that has never stopped. A letter from a prominent churchwoman says: "We have had additions to our attendance equal to and perhaps greater since Mr. Sunday's revival there before, and just now we have had in our church a three weeks' revival, with splendid success. The cries of the pessimists were that after Mr. Sunday left that there would be a dearth of religion and people would be much harder to reach."
